

As well as those words in Ephesians 4:29: Do not let any unwholesome talk come out of your mouths, but only what is helpful for building others up according to their needs, that it may benefit those who listen.

5: The Power of Pastoral Care

As a church, we will never be able to meet the pastoral needs of everyone but, through Home Groups, we can ensure that most people's pastoral needs are catered for (especially through the 'associate members' network that is in place). Whatever you do in the Home Group - every word you say, every action - do it for the sake of others. Look for ways you can support and help the leader. Look for ways to care for the members of the Home Group (and those who are associate members); those who could really do with a phone call or a visit; those who would benefit from someone praying, or reading the Bible, with them; those who need practical, financial or material help; those who just need a friend to share a meal and watch a DVD.

And Finally ...

I believe that if we fully grasp the possibilities, and potential, that Home Groups have to offer, we will recognise that they present us with an enormously fruitful opportunity for the building up our church family through: developing meaningful relationships; establishing effective pastoral care; enabling us to grow in our faith; and helping us to be: 'A Family Church at the Heart of Billericay.'

It must be obvious by now how much I value, and want you to benefit from, belonging to a Home Group. If you are not in a Home Group and are interested in finding out more, please have a chat with me, Pauline or any Home Group leader. It is my prayer that you will find enjoyment, encouragement and, most of all, spiritual growth, when you commit yourself to being an effective Home Group member.

Being An Effective Home Group Member At Emmanuel Church

(Or ... how you can gain the most from belonging to a Home Group!)

Introduction

Home Groups are an integral part of the ongoing life of Emmanuel Church. Belonging to a Home Group becomes ever more important as our numbers increase - it's so easy to feel 'lost' in a larger church. Home Groups provide the opportunity to develop friendships with other members of our church family and to strengthen your Christian faith. They usually meet every other week, following our Sunday sermon series, and include regular opportunities for social events.

Why Attend in the First Place?

People attend Home Groups for all sorts of reasons, to: make friends; deepen relationships; receive encouragement and support; and to learn more about being a Christian - amongst many others. Whilst all of these are perfectly good reasons to join a Home Group the first, and most important, reason must be clear in our minds: Our primary reason for belonging to a Home Group is to give us an opportunity to love and encourage other people in Jesus.

This, after all, is what the Christian life is all about. We are called to love other people as Jesus has loved us, to lay down our lives as Jesus did for us. This applies as much to Home Groups as it does to our marriages and families, our church life and Sunday services. We attend Home Groups not primarily to have our needs met, but to meet the needs of others. In essence, it's not about me; it's about them. And it's about them because of Jesus. Of course, we have needs too and, I've every confidence, they will be met along the way. The truth is, the more we focus on loving others, and doing whatever we can for them, the more encouragement and strength we find ourselves. There's no doubt that being a Home Group member can be a very demanding experience.

It can cost us our lives, but isn't that what it means to be a follower of Jesus - to lay down our lives for the sake of others?

Some people might ask whether belonging to a Home Group really makes a difference to the lives of its members? Does the Home Group have a clear purpose, or does it just exist because it has always existed? Do folk attend because that's what they're expected to do? More to the point, what part do members play in their Home Group and what can they do to make their Home Group a success? I want to suggest five 'powerful' ways in which answers to these questions can be found:

1: The Power of Presence

This is the simplest and most obvious, but is no less powerful for being so. Just being present, each time you meet, is a powerful encouragement to other members of your Home Group. In making a commitment to group time, to be missed only in times of emergency, you send a very clear message to other members: "Being with you matters very much to me. Unless something important comes up, I'll be there. Encouraging you is very important to me." Conversely, inconsistent attendance sends a somewhat less encouraging message: "I don't mind coming, but it's not that important. If I feel a bit tired or something else crops up, don't expect me. Being with you and encouraging you isn't really a priority for me." Turning up regularly requires no extraordinary gifts or talent, but it is a powerful way of loving other people. Home Groups meet twice a month during the week following the Home Group sermon series—usually on the second and fourth Sundays.

2: The Power of Preparation

Myself, along with most Home Group leaders, are forever pleading with members to read the Bible passage and complete the study sheets in advance of the meeting. The leader knows full well that most people won't, but there's no harm in trying!

You may have never thought about it in this way, but preparation is a powerful way to love members of your Home Group. The sermon notes and study sheets will be available in church on the Sunday the sermon is preached (and on our website - along with an MP3 sermon to download!) and are planned on the basis that every member will do some preparation in advance.

It stands to reason that preparing in advance by reading the passage, working through the sermon handout and completing the Looking Upwards, Looking Inwards, Looking Outwards sections, greatly increases the benefit you yourself receive from the meeting.

More importantly, however, it enables you to encourage others by what you say because, rather than throwing in 'whatever comes to mind' at the time, you have actually thought about the Bible passage and the issues it raises. This way, you are much better prepared to encourage and stimulate others if you have given it some thought beforehand.

3: The Power of Prayer

Epaphras, the apostle Paul's friend and fellow worker, would have made an ideal Home Group member. According to Paul, he was always "wrestling in prayer" for the Colossians, that they might "stand firm in all the will of God". Paul was able to say that, in doing so, Epaphras was "working hard for you" (Colossians 4:12-13). Praying for others can be difficult, even emotional but, equally, it can also be very satisfying. Prayer is, I believe, one of the most loving things we can do for our fellow Home Group members, not only because it is through our prayers that God does His work in people's lives, but because it is such a quiet, inconspicuous form of ministry. We do it because we care for that person and want what is best for them in Jesus.

4: The Power of Personality

The analogy may be starting to stretch out a little thin here, but another powerful way of encouraging other members of your Home Group is to be willing to share your own life and personality with them. This is by no means an easy thing to do. Many of us would much rather keep quiet and not give too much away.

However, by being willing to make ourselves vulnerable and by opening up and sharing our lives and thoughts and hopes and fears and joys, we can be a great blessing to others. Not only do we show them that we have the very same struggles they have (but thought they were alone in suffering); we also encourage them to open up as well. Of course, we need to heed the advice of Proverbs and think carefully before we speak.
